Knowledge layer: only approved documents

The client decides what the agent may learn from. Problems the agent finds go back to the document owner, so the source gets cleaner over time.

Changes flow through the same path. An edit re-processes only the sections that changed. Unmarking or deleting a document removes it from the index, so the agent never cites something the client withdrew.